Dear Parents and Carers,

I have spoken to a few parents recently who have asked about our work on diversity and behind some of the social media posts from last week, as they had concerns about what the school might or might not be doing. Last week, the new American government announced measures to restrict the promotion of diversity and equality in schools and colleges and this has prompted further debate in the UK about whether schools in the UK have "overdone" diversity work. I would like to outline the college's approach to diversity and equality

We must comply with the 2010 Equalities Act, which protects people with the following characteristics from discrimination: age, disability, gender reassignment, pregnancy/maternity; race; religious belief; gender; sexual orientation; marriage/civil partnership. There is a "Public Sector Equality Duty" which means that all those working in schools and other government funded organisations must uphold the 2010 Equality Act. Specifically, it means all public employees must do the following three things: (1) eliminate discrimination against those with the protected characteristics listed above; (2) ensure that those with these characteristics have equal opportunities and remove barriers they might have to these opportunities; (3) foster good relations between those with and those without those characteristics.

Schools must publish an Equalities Statement which explains how it will meet its responsibilities under the 2010 Equalities Act and the Public Sector Equality duty. You can find Wyvern's Equality Statement Policies - Wyvern College - Think Grow Care; it was written in partnership with a parental focus group on equality and explains how we undertake our diversity work.

Schools must also promote the five "British Values" which, in 2011, the government defined as: democracy, the rule of law, tolerance, individual liberty and respect for those from other cultures. We have mapped what we teach to promote each of the 5 British values as well as what we teach to meet the 3 public sector equality duties. You can find this map here . You will be able to see from this, what individual subjects teach in relation to diversity and equality. Our core RPS programme, followed by all students, also underpins our work on British Values and diversity. Further detail on what each subject covers is available on our website Curriculum Overview - Wyvern College - Think Grow Care . Just over a year ago, Ofsted inspected the college and were very happy with the approach we have taken on equality and diversity stating, "Pupils respect diversity and feel confident to be different."

In our diversity work, we do spend more time focusing on some issues and less time on others. This is in line with the principles of the DfE statutory safeguarding guidelines - Keeping Children Safe in Education - which acknowledges the need to allow schools and colleges to take positive action, where it can be shown that it is proportionate, to deal with disadvantages affecting pupils or students with certain protected characteristics in order to meet their specific need.

Sadly, we know, in the context our college, that people with some of the protected characteristics are especially vulnerable to discrimination, involving negative stereotyping and derogatory comments. We have identified race and sexuality as the top priorities, with gender and disability next. That is why we devote more time to educating students on these

The next priority for our diversity work is to raise students' understanding of learning differences such as ADHD, autism and Downs Syndrome so students so we can promote better relations between those with a learning difference and those without one. Students tend to show kindness and friendship to those who they can visibly see as being different but do not always do this with students whose learning difference is not so visible. We also need to ensure that students with special needs participate in extra-curricular activities as much as students without a SEN do.

Ultimately, we aim to create a school where students learn to be kind to everyone and to respect each other's quirks and individuality. If we get this right, then equality and respect for diversity falls into place. We have an increasingly diverse college. We have 194 students whose ethnicity is not white-British, and we have 213 with an identified special education need. We have students who are practising Christians, Muslims, Hindus, Sikhs, Jews, Jehovah Witnesses, Buddhists and other faiths. We have students who are gay. We have transgender and non-binary students.

We want every one of our students to feel welcomed, liked, valued, respected, included and encouraged to fully participate in the opportunities we provide. That is the aim of our diversity and equality work; but it needs everyone's support to make that a reality.

Best wishes
Mr Rule

GENERAL NOTICES

Keeping our Communities Tidy

The FOHHPC Grounds Team have reported that there has been an increase in littering within Fair Oak cemetery grounds. As you can appreciate, Fair Oak Cemetery is a place of reflection and respect for many in our community, and maintaining its cleanliness is of utmost importance.

We all need to recognise the importance of respecting public spaces and the consequences of littering. We would really appreciate it if you could reinforce this message at home, although we know that many of our families already appreciate their role in keeping our community tidy.

YEAR 7 NOTICES

No notices this week

YEAR 8 NOTICES

Another busy week for Year 8.

I know that many Year 8s are involved in the production which is a wonderful aspect of college life to be a part of. I wish them the best of luck with this and know that they will all be exhausted by the end of it but will have really benefited from this amazing experience with peers and staff.

I know that many students are also really thinking about their option choices, and we look forward to welcoming them and you at the week after next for our Options Evening.

We also have the Year 8 Parents Evening the week after half term and the Booking System for this goes live on Monday 3rd February at 6pm so be sure to book appointments for subjects your child is interested in studying to GCSE. I think it is important that our students attend these meetings. Prior to virtual evenings, children always attended and given that the entire conversation is about them, their progress and their choices, I think it is essential that they're part of this dialogue.

Could you please also make sure that students are bringing their logbook and other necessary equipment to school each day? We would really appreciate this support in ensuring that Y8s are ready to learn every day and time is not wasted trying to source equipment that all students should already bring to college - most do!

Praise news this week - I would like to congratulate 8H1 for earning the highest number of P1s last week (502), very closely followed by G2 (492) and in third place P1 (475). The leader board for students this term is as follows Erwann from H1 is in first place again with 56 P1s, Lyra from D2, Jack from G1 and Fern from P1 all in joint second place with 46 P1s and in third place Sophie from H1 with 40 points – amazing effort!
